

44: The Child's Infant Formula Preference Indicates Parent Supplies Formula and Food

Last Modified on 03/06/2019 10:47 am CST

Parents can indicate that they will provide formula and food for their infant children on enrollment forms. This error is generated for every Breakfast, Lunch, and Dinner served to 8-11 month-old infants if parents select this option. At younger meals, the additional food items are optional, so the parent is just supplying formula, which is reimbursable. At snacks for 8-11 month-old infants, the meal may be disallowed depending on whether formula is served.

You can disable this error to always allow these meals (regardless of the infant food setting), if your state allows reimbursement for all infants even when the parent supplies formula and food.
